"FRAN-I-CIZED"

Most of you are aware by now of Hurricane Fran that hit the coast of North Carolina slightly south of Wilmington on Thursday night, September 5, and proceeded on a north-western path into the early hours of Friday morning!

If you think hurricanes only affect folks on the coast, then you are sadly mistaken! We lost our electrical power at the college on Thursday night, and it was not restored until Friday, September 13--eight whole days!

Everyone knew the path of the storm was coming our way, but I don't even believe the "experts" thought it would do the damage it did! I think the best way to sum up what Fran did to the Raleigh area is--"devastation!"

There were over a million people without electricity; many had no water, there was flooding, downed trees and power lines, damaged vehicles, and homes, etc. Literally, thousands of trees were blown down. On Friday authorities were asking everyone to stay in and not be out unless it was an emergency. Many of the roads were impassable because of the trees and flooding. (It rained 9.44 inches presence known.) Yet, in spite of discomfort and damage, we still thankful. We lost three big trees loss was our food in the freezers I was disappointed to see the but you can replant trees and thankful and grateful to our Lord students and staff. No one suffered buildings were damaged--and I something for which to be thankful.

Our staff and students were out until Sunday afternoon, water--thank the Lord) when it electricity was not going to be on any time soon. We let our students leave that lived in nearby states such as South Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, etc. For the other students that lived further away, they were able to go home with some of these students or stay with some of our North Carolina students. We had told them to check back with us on Tuesday to see if we had power, and if we did, we would resume classes on Wednesday morning. However, Tuesday came and Carolina Power and Light would not guarantee our electricity until Friday afternoon. So, we had no choice but to call off our classes for the rest of the week.

"troopers" as they "toughed" it September 9, (we did have became apparent that the

It certainly wasn't what we wanted to do, but they told us right, because they did not get our power on until late Friday afternoon. I want to especially "thank" all the families who kept our college students that were unable to go home. I certainly appreciate you opening your home to them. Your generous Christian hospitality was an inspiration to all of us! Again, thank you so very much!

I'm glad to report that everyone is back! We didn't lose one student! I have to admit, I was a little nervous. I was thinking it would be real easy for some of the students not to return. But every one returned, plus an extra one! We have 152 students this semester and it is obvious they want to be here!

I just want to thank the Lord for His goodness to us. Sure, it was a little inconvenient and even frustrating at times. But I assure you, it could have been a whole lot worse! Thank all of you who helped us in any way. A special thanks to Mr. Ira Fuller, city manager of Wendell, for his assistance and suggestions. Special thanks to our staff for their help in getting things back in shape for the students to return. Special thanks, again, to the folks who housed our college students.

Yes, Fran left her calling card! She got our attention! We experienced some inconvenience and discomfort! But what a great group we have here! They are a resilient bunch! They never lost their spirit! We serve a great God that is able to save and keep! I'm glad He's "the Master of the sea." Matthew 8:27 says, "But the men marvelled, saying, What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey Him!" That included "Fran," too!

Correspondence on the Internet

Southeastern is happy to announce that we are now in the "test" phase of offering correspondence courses over the Internet. These new classes will give you the convenience of working on college classes from the comfort of your home to fit your time schedule. Also, they will provide the added benefit of being able to have close contact with your professor through e-mail for quick feedback on questions and assignments.

Right now we have available the two hour course "The Epistles to the Thessalonians." If you are interested in taking this course, please contact the college. We will be happy to help. If all goes well, we plan to offer other courses in the coming months.

Our Internet "Home Page"

If you have internet access, you might want to check out our new home page. Here you can find our college catalog "on line." This sight is still under construction, but we hope it will provide useful information regarding our college, our academic programs, our financial requirements and other helpful items. Check us out at www.ntmnet.edu/~baerd. You can also e-mail us at baerd@nd1.ntmnet.net

New "Toll Free Student Recruitment Number"

Are you a prospective student or the parent of a prospective student of Southeastern? Then call us today with our new toll free number. We have reserved this number especially for prospective students or questions about our programs here at Southeastern. Want an application? Want to know about our degrees? Want to talk about finances? Call us today at: 1-888-U-4-SFWBC (1-888-847-3922)

A Fulfilling Purpose In Moldova

"I knew that I would be going to a new village to begin a church soon, but I was unsure about what to do. Because of this seminar on 'Methods of Evangelism and Church Planting,' I now know exactly what I am going to do when I get there and how I will go about it!" These were the words spoken very confidently by a young married man of 27 who was a missionary to a new village to start a brand new church. Similar words were spoken as testimonials in the closing service of the evangelism seminar in Moldova. These young men and women were excited at the heightened prospect of better ministering and reaching out to their people. The purpose for which we went to Moldova was confirmed as fulfilled in these testimonies. The 79 year old pastor of the church where we held the seminar was visibly thrilled to have his church filled with young men and women who wanted to serve and to evangelize for the Lord.

The Lord blessed in many aspects of our trip to Romania and Moldova. Along with the all-day seminar lessons on evangelism, we also preached evangelistic services in churches throughout the week. One special service stands out in my mind. On Thursday evening of our trip, I went to a nearby village to preach. Because the number of people who came to the service was so many, the church could not hold them. The pastor got the premier of the village to open the community center so we could hold the service there. It was already dusk, and the center had no working lights. We finally got two light bulbs working in the building, but the bulbs were so small that it was still hard to see. After an hour and a half delay, the service began. Christ blessed the service by giving great liberty in the preaching and translation. At the concluding prayer of the invitation, a young man came forward and accepted Christ as his Saviour. After the service, people stayed at the center rejoicing and singing for about half an hour.

We are thankful for the opportunity to have served in Moldova and for all the faithful supporters who helped make this mission trip possible.

Summer Missions Report

Students from Southeastern were privileged to work in several different countries this summer which allowed them to view a different culture and to more fully understand what world missions is about. Three of our students spent ten weeks on three different fields. Andy Moore worked with Tom and Nancy Hughes in Brazil; Andrea Woodfin was with the Bunch family in Panama, and Kristie Bell was in the land of the Rising Sun with the Bishop family. Seven other students spent ten days in Moldova working in youth camps. Pray with us that we can have more of our students as summer missionaries next year.

MISSIONS CONFERENCE October 17-18, 1996

Theme: "No Man Careth for My Soul." Psalm 142:4

Our Missions Conference is the highlight of the fall semester. Many have been praying and we are assured that God has led us to some wonderful speakers: Dr. M. A. Thomas from India; Rev. Don Bailey, home missionary working in San Angelo, TX; Rev. Johnny Pike, pastor of Tabernacle FWB Church, Kinston, NC, and director of Local Church Missions; and Rev. Dann Patrick, pastor of Faith FWB Church in Goldsboro, NC. Our students will be presenting a drama, singing, and giving testimonies.

It is our prayer that God will challenge and change all of our lives as a result of this conference. Please make plans to attend.

SPECIAL Thanks!

Mr. & Mrs. Bob Groff, Kinston, NC, recently presented Southeastern with a generous check in the amount of $170,000 for the new activities center. Mr. & Mrs. Groff have expressed a love for Southeastern and the philosophy for which it stands. Their gift is a most timely one as we endeavor to raise funds for the new building. Everyone at Southeastern would like to express their sincere appreciation to Mr. & Mrs. Groff for their generosity. The Groffs have two grandsons who attend Southeastern: Yogi Barwick from Kinston, NC, and Daniel Groff, from Raleigh, NC. Pictured below are President Bevan, Mr. & Mrs. Groff and Jack Lassiter, Promotional Director.

Rev. Frank McQuage was pastor of the Maple Street FWB Church in Rockingham for 40 years. Upon the death of his wife, he and his children established the Ida McQuage scholarship fund to help students with furthering their education. This year the award in the amount of $1,078.43 was presented to Southeastern for the Kimberly Mischa Bevan Memorial Scholarship Fund. This fund is used to assist deserving students pursuing a degree in Christian ministry. We are grateful to the McQuage's for their investment in the lives of young people. Pictured above with Bro. Lassiter are Ronnie McQuage, Wanda McQuage Clark, Bill McQuage, and Maple Street's current pastor, Dr. Mike Haynes. The Mischa Bevan Scholarships will be awarded during the first week of October.
