YOU CAN ATTEND SOUTHEASTERN

Any serious minded student who wants to do the will of God, willing to sacrifice and willing to learn, can attend Southeastern Free Will Baptist College. While some give up and quit, others are finishing the course with a strong determination to never quit and to finish what God has called them to do.

A married man, who knew virtually nothing about Southeastern—only what his young pastor had told him—sold out, bought an old school bus, loaded up his furniture and clothes and left Topeka, Kansas traveling 1200 miles to Virginia Beach to attend Southeastern. God led him here. He is making it.

Another student, single, heard of Southeastern from a friend. She left her mother and dad, separated by divorce, in order to attend Southeastern. She had no funds. She is presently working two jobs to pay her college bill. She is making it.

The list could go on and on of students, some married, some single, who questioned their ability to attend college because of finances or because they thought that they could not pass college work. Yet, most of them are making it. They put their hands to the plow with faith and trust in God and great determination to finish their college training. They will make it and you can also.

For students who must work, the job market in Tidewater Virginia is excellent. All students who need work are working. A couple of our married students began their own business and now employ 10-15 of the other students. Most of those who work off campus are within a five to ten minute drive to work. All off campus places of employment must be approved before students are allowed to work there. For example, a student may not work at a place where they must handle beer.

Tuition and room and board costs at Southeastern are considerably lower than other major Christian colleges where many Free Will Baptist high school graduates attend. Taking an average of five of these colleges from their 1986-87 catalogs, their tuition is $84 per credit hour. Their room and board averages $1149 per semester. The tuition at Southeastern for the 1986-87 school year will be $55 per credit hour. The cost for room and board will be $880 per semester. It is obvious that there would be a considerable savings in college costs by attending Southeastern.

Some may conclude that since the cost is less that the academics must be inferior. A couple of good interviews with some of our students who have transferred from other colleges would easily erase that misguided conclusion. One could also clear his thinking along these lines by examining the philosophy and credentials of our faculty. God has undoubtedly put together on the campus of Southeastern one of the best qualified faculties and staffs to be found anywhere.

Students are able to secure financial help from a limited number of scholarships that are available at Southeastern. There are a number of people in our church who help many of the students financially. They give them jobs. At times, they give them money. In some cases, they loan them money. A few of our students secure loans at a local bank. God is meeting the needs of our students. He uses various means to meet the financial needs of all our serious and determined students.

The Board of Southeastern has voted to establish a $25,000 scholarship fund and a $25,000 loan fund. This will help worthy students with their financial needs. This program will help to alleviate the problems of those who have had to drop out because of finances.

So you see, you can attend Southeastern. It is within your reach. Pray about it and then give us a call or write us. If it is God's will, you can make it, too.

SUMMER INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

Each year Southeastern College seeks to make available, through its Summer Intern Program, a number of young men to work in local churches during the summer months. In the past two years of the program, students have won folks to Christ, begun or re-vitalized youth ministries, started bus routes, worked in youth camps, taught Vacation Bible School and done a host of other things.

This year we hope to present our best group yet. These young men are eager to serve. They are adequately prepared to do a number of jobs as well as being willing to work anywhere needed. If your church can possibly make the arrangements necessary, let us encourage you to consider using one of the young men from Southeastern Free Will Baptist College. It may very well be just the right help you need this summer.
